Washington Co. commissioners openly discuss FBI investigation, select multiple contractors for emergency management services

COLLIN BREAUX

Cbreaux@kentsmith.biz

Rather than one firm, the Washington County Board of County Commissioners selected three contractors to handle emergency management in case of a hurricane or similar disaster.

The board separately voted to contract with Wheeler Emergency Management Contractors, Metric Engineering, and True North Emergency Management Services.

Chatter has circulated in the community that Wheeler, the existing contractor, is involved in an FBI investigation—which was referenced numerous times by commissioners and the public during the commission meeting on Thursday, Sept. 21.

“Let’s talk about the elephant in the room,” County Attorney Matthew Fuqua said during the workshop on Monday, Sept. 18. “Everybody knows there’s an FBI investigation going on with Wheeler or some of the people going on with Wheeler.”

The Washington County News has been told about an alleged investigation by multiple sources over the past year; however, none of those sources have been willing to go on the record with that information. Washington County News has reached out intermittently to the FBI in attempts to substantiate the claims with the FBI’s spokesperson from the Jacksonville Field Office stating they can “neither confirm nor deny” an investigation is underway in Washington County.

“I don’t know what the investigation entails,” Commissioner Alan T. Bush said. “I really don’t. I asked where it initiated from. All I was told was it was initiated from a contractor.”

During the Sept. 19 meeting of the Holmes County Board of County Commissioners, District 1 Commissioner Jeff Good said that Washington County was in agreement with Holmes County relinquishing control of their interest of the 79 Corridor project to the City of Bonifay.

At the 79 Corridor budget meeting on Sept. 13, in which Good was a voting member, it was discussed that Holmes County wanted out and the City of Bonifay was interested.

WCB OCC talks appropriations, recognizes Jackson

DIANE M. MOORE

The Washington County Board of County Commissioners approved three projects for appropriation requests when they met in regular session on Sept. 21.

County Administrator Jeff Massey brought forth the recommendations for the requests to be made during the 2024 legislative session. The first project is a new Washington County Fire Department/EMS station in Sunny Hills to support the growth in the south end of the county. The request totals $2.5 million.

The second project, which was requested last year but not funded, is for drainage mitigation at the county annex. The request is for $2.2 million to complete the project. The last of the projects is to finish out the Dumajack Road project in phase II at a total of $1.062 million.

Commissioners will make these requests when the Legislative Delegation meeting with Senator Jay Trumbull and State Representative Shane Abbott comes to the county on October 3.

The board recognized Danny Jackson for his 30 years of employment with the public works department, which he is retiring from.

“This is a pleasure to do but something we hate to see happen,” said Chairman Tray Hawkins. “This man has given back to his community tirelessly and we cherish him. He is leaving a huge hole for us to fill. He will be greatly missed but is deserving of his retirement.”

In other items, commissioners approved the waiver of a two-year resubmission period for a land use change application. The original application was not approved by the board or the Washington County Planning Commission in August.

The land use change is for acreage at Crystal Lake Drive and Highway 77 from residential low to residential medium and neighborhood commercial for one acre of the 40 total acres.

Commissioners were not in support of the plans brought before the board and feared the change could lead to unwanted types of domiciles being placed.

“We are looking for growth,” said Planning Chairman John Gay. “The proper kind of growth.”

Esto to revive Two-Toed Tom Festival

COLLIN BREAUX

Cbreaux@kentsmith.biz

A signature event in Esto is gearing up to return next year.

The small Holmes County town will hold the Two-Toed Tom Festival again on September 14 in 2024 at John Clark Park.

The event recognizes Two-Toed Tom, a legendary alligator in Esto folklore who is said to have terrorized citizens in the Florida Panhandle and surrounding area dating back to the 1900s. The creature is so named because he supposedly lost all but two toes to traps and is claimed—often tongue-in-cheek—to still lurk in the area to this day.

The celebration will feature a lumberjack-themed show by Timberworks Lumberjack Show.

“They will put on a great show and I am very excited,” Town Clerk Ben

Pate leaves behind ‘legacy of love’

DIANE M. MOORE

Dmoore@kentsmith.biz

On Labor Day, Melissa Pate’s world was turned upside down when her son, Tyler, was shot and killed.

Just one week after his 30th birthday, Tyler Allen Pate, was killed by a gunshot wound to the chest from Matthew Ryan Peoples. While his death is surrounded by much controversy on social media, Pate’s mom, Melissa, wants people to remember the Tyler she knew.

“Tyler made mistakes in his life,” said Pate. “He was never a bad kid. He messed up just like we all do.”

Pate says Tyler wanted to do and be better for his children and his family.

“He checked himself into rehab in October of 2022 and had just come home in July,” she said. “When he got home, he went straight to work. He started going to church, having Bible study, and he gave his life to the Lord. I hate that people didn’t get to see that person. The people that mattered did get to see it and that is all that matters.”

Tyler was a father of three with another on the way, two daughters and one son ages 10, seven and two.

“He loved his kids more than anything,” Pate said. “The way his son’s (Xavier) face would light up when he saw his daddy was the exact same as Tyler’s would when he saw Xavier. The love between them was immeasurable.”

CHS student killed, 4 others injured in Collins Road crash

STAFF REPORT

A Chipley High School junior was fatally injured Saturday in a single-vehicle crash. The driver, confirmed by a Facebook post from CHS to be 17-year-old Tyler Swearingen, lost control of his vehicle while traveling eastbound on Collins Road, according to a report from the Florida Highway Patrol.

The single-vehicle wreck occurred on Saturday, Sept. 23, at 8:02 p.m.

FHP reports two other 17-year-olds and a 15-year-old sustained serious injuries, while another 15-year-old sustained critical injuries. Those teens have not yet been officially identified.

The crash occurred when the vehicle was said to have overturned after running off the road. Swearingen was ejected from the vehicle while it was overturning, the FHP said.

“The loss of anyone is difficult, but the loss of a student is something that feels unthinkable,” said the school in the social media post.

Look for a tribute to Tyler Swearingen in next week’s edition, as well as online at washingtoncounty.news.

Esto declines townwide mosquito spraying services

COLLIN BREAUX
Cbreaux@kentsmith.biz

Florida, including the Panhandle, is a place where trucks sometimes go around spraying mosquito repellent to ward off the buzzing nuisance.

The Esto Town Council, however, is saying no to doing that in 2023.

Councilmembers declined to go forward with townwide spraying during their monthly meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 19.

Councilmember Gareth Skipper supported not spraying this year and cited financial reasons as a factor, which other councilmembers then unanimously agreed with.

Council Vice President Josh Davenport asked for input on the matter from his peers on if it’s better or worse mosquito-wise when it sprays.

“I don’t have a good gauge on this because of where I live,” Davenport said. “I live in a fairly secluded area with woods and so I don’t really know exactly how that works.”

Town Clerk Ben Tew gave his perspective as someone who lives in town—specifically, next to Dollar General “with their drainage pond.”

“I can certainly say in previous years that there have been less mosquitoes,” Tew said.

“I really think this mosquito spray does work.”

Tew further said he believes there are more mosquitoes this year.

The estimated cost for Esto to do mosquito spraying is around $1,000 to $1,100 a year, with spraying done about once a week. Mosquito spraying lasts through October.

Should mosquito spraying ever be done, people can request to be on a no-spray address list for various reasons, including allergies.

In other news from the meeting, Tew said the Holmes County Tourist Development Council planned to eventually shoot a highlight video in Esto and surrounding areas as part of tourism marketing efforts.

Davenport said John Clark Park needs upgrades, which would hopefully be done in a month and in time for the TDC’s visit.

An air conditioning unit at John Clark Park will be repaired to address a leaking air handler at a cost of $1,330.

FWC officials to expand testing for deer disease

JIM TURNER
News Service of Florida

Some deer killed during two popular hunting days in December must be tested for a contagious disease fatal to the animals as the state expands efforts to limit the spread of the disease.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission said on Tuesday, Sept. 19, that deer killed on Dec. 9 and Dec. 10 in most areas of Holmes, Jackson and Washington counties must be tested for chronic wasting disease at one of 21 check stations before being processed for food or going to taxidermists.

“These counties comprise the CWD (Chronic Wasting Disease) Enhanced Surveillance Zone, and the FWC (Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission) is prioritizing heightened surveillance and regulations within this zone to reduce the potential spread of CWD both within the zone and throughout the state,” Lauren Claerbout, a spokeswoman for the commission’s Division of Hunting and Game Management, said.

The disease is described as similar to mad cow disease, with deer becoming emaciated and often being found isolated and trembling. While not considered harmful to people, the disease can result in death within four months to deer.

The testing details were presented Tuesday during a meeting in Bonifay. Another meeting is scheduled Oct. 10 in Marianna.

The commission will try to get as many samples as possible to meet testing goals.

“We can get some deer out of season from road kills. but the majority of our samples will come from hunter-harvested deer,” commission Deer Management Program Coordinator Cory Morea said in Bonifay. “So, it’s really important to get out and hunt and provide samples whenever.”

The commission is asking people who see sick, abnormally thin deer, or deer dead of unknown causes to report the finds. Claerbout said it also is asking hunters to bring in deer heads for testing outside of the “check station weekend.”

The commission issued an emergency order after a case of chronic wasting disease was detected in June in a “road-killed”

Washington Co. Commissioners approve administrator contract

COLLIN BREAUX
Cbreaux@kentsmith.biz

Jeff Massey will continue serving as the Washington County administrator.

The Washington County Board of County Commissioners approved a contract for Massey by a 3-2 vote during a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 21.

Massey has been in the position since July 2017.

Under the approved agreement, Massey's contract continues through 2025. He will receive a salary of $99,985.60.

"The Board agrees to employ Mr. Massey as the County Administrator of the County on an 'at will' basis and at the pleasure of the Washington County Board of Commissioners, until such time as his employment is terminated by the Board or he resigns as County Administrator," the agreement said.

Should the board wish to terminate Massey's contract without cause, there would have to be "reasonable prior notice of calling such a vote" provided to Massey.

"Reasonable prior notice for purposes of this agreement only is defined as not less than 72 hours notice before any meeting at which the question of termination will be discussed is called to order," the agreement said.

The termination date would then be "not less than 30 days following the vote."

Massey would receive a severance payment equal to his salary and benefits for five months and lump sum payments for unused leave and sick hours, as well as continuation of health insurance coverage at county expense for 150 calendar days following termination.

Non-renewal of a contract is not considered employment termination.

Should Massey's contract be terminated with cause—reasons which would include "gross negligence in the handling of County affairs" or "willful violation of the provisions of law"—the board can approve severance pay but is not obligated to the extent as if he were let go without cause.

Massey must provide "not less than 60 days' written notice prior to the effective date of any voluntary resignation, unless the parties agree otherwise" if he wishes to voluntarily resign.

Wausau wraps up budget, honors retiring clerk Margaret Riley

NAN THOMPSON
Nthompson@kentsmith.biz

Wausau Town Council adopted an ordinance on Thursday, Sept. 21, closing the final budget for the 2023-2024 fiscal year.

Throughout the month of September, the council held public hearings regarding the proposed budget where residents could talk about and view the tentative budget amount.

"Final numbers had not changed since they had been published in the newspaper," Town

Clerk Margaret Riley said.

The final 2023-2024 balanced budget number is $3,231,482.

In other Wausau news, Mayor Roger Dale Hagan announced that Denise Spencer will be taking over as town clerk on Oct. 1. Margaret Riley will retire on Sept. 30 and hand over her duties after 27 years of service to the city.

Animal control and animal registration once again came before the council and will be brought back up at the October meeting. The city is exploring ways to cut costs and ensure the city still has animal control.

The council will be attending the Legislative Delegation meeting in Chipley on Oct. 3 at the Washington County Annex. The town will present a grant request to finish the Possum Palace.

Also in October, the city will begin offering a non-potable water source for businesses. For more information, contact the city at 850-638-1781.

Margaret Riley will officially retire from her role as town clerk after 27 years of service and hand over her duties to Denise Spencer, who will take over Oct. 1. [CAROL KENT | The News and Advertiser]

WC Council on Aging looking for donations

DIANE M. MOORE
Dmoore@kentsmith.biz

Washington County Council on Aging (COA) is a hub for senior activities with their community center, day center and other monthly activities for seniors. With those, donations sometimes run low and supplies need to be replenished.

The day center provides respite care for those with early onset dementia in order to give their caregivers a needed break. COA provides snacks and drinks for clients but are currently running low on their favorites of each.

Their favorites include Hawaiian Punch (any flavor) and sugar free low calorie drink mixes. Coffee, creamer and soft style snacks are also in demand. The drinks and snacks are shared between the two centers.

Community Outreach Coordinator Geri Cox says COA offers many activities, services and trips.

"We have many exciting things happening here at COA," Cox said. "Aside from our regular monthly activities, we have a five-day trip to Biltmore House coming up in October that those interested can still sign up for. We also have a Christmas event in December and food trucks that come once a month. Maria's Tacos will be here on October 27, and we are excited to have them."

Monthly activities include bingo, a birthday party, art classes and an exercise class.

Donations can be dropped off at 1348 South Boulevard in Chipley.

Medicare enrollment options can be confusing. You don't have to navigate them alone.

LES BROWN
Senior Life Specialist

Hey, my name is Les Brown! No, not the "Les Brown and the Band of Renown" guy from many years ago. And after seeing my picture you might have thought you had seen it on the Post Office wall—not me! I am the guy you probably saw sitting in Walmart for the past 7 years helping people find their way through the confusing maze of Medicare. I am taking a different route this year and will be focusing more on appointments at your convenience and in a quiet, more private atmosphere. But I feel like people should know more about the person whom they entrust with their health insurance protection so let me share a little of who I am and what led me to this profession.

I am a native of Panama City, born a Navy brat (which entailed moving every few years) till my dad retired and went to work for Gulf Power at the plant in Southport. I played basketball for Mosley High School and graduated in the 1st graduating class (1975). I went on to a small college in Atlanta where I studied to become a minister in the Christian Church. After serving other congregations, I was called to serve a small congregation in Bayou George (Panama City area). Since the church could not afford a full time salary, I had to find an additional occupation to make ends meet (plus having 4 boys who expected to be fed every day). I did not want a job just to make money but something that served and ministered to others. In every church I served in, the seniors always complained about the confusion of moving into the Medicare arena so that motivated me into becoming an agent to help seniors get through the Medicare maze! It has definitely been a journey of understanding the process and learning the ins and outs. But an enjoyable journey because I have been able to meet and help so many wonderful people. In fact, I believe it is this senior group that we have to thank for making us the greatest country on earth!

Well, hopefully after all that you are still awake and the mind hasn't zoned out! Over the next 8 weeks I will be sharing some information each week to give you a better understanding of the Medicare arena and a foundation for walking through it. It is something that can not be fully grasped in one sitting (I've had people with Doctors who were frustrated with understanding it) so hopefully these weekly nuggets will add up to a better grasp of what it is and what works best for you.

We are entering the AEP for Medicare that goes from October 15th – December 7th. After October 1st (due to Medicare rules) I will have some fantastic news to share with any who are on Advantage plans that will be a major boost to their situation. You are free to call me for the info or set up an appointment to discuss this awesome news.

Please be patient if you do not get me on the phone – just leave me a message

Things I’ve never done

JASE GRAVES
Guest Columnist

A few days ago, my wife and I were taking our evening almost-senior-citizen power stroll, and the subject of Hooters came up. Yes, Hooters.

And I’ll tell you why (even if you wish I wouldn’t).

We were having a good laugh because someone on Facebook had suggested that our local and recently-shuttered Bed Bath & Beyond store might become a giant Hooters. (Pretend you didn’t read those last two words together.)

It was at that point I realized and proudly confessed to my wife that I’ve never visited a Hooters restaurant. Myself-righteous gloating was soon silenced, though, when my wife announced, “Well, I have. It was a long time ago, and I was on a business trip. It obviously wasn’t my choice.”

I was stunned, not so much that my wife had been served owl tacos, or whatever it is they have at Hooters, but that she had done this stereotypical “man” thing that I’d never done – and really have no desire to do. (I mean, who eats owls?)

That got me thinking about other things I haven’t done in my 50-something-year-old life, so I made a list

(even if you wish I wouldn’t).

1. I’ve never been duck hunting. My father-in-law did take me deer hunting once – back when I was dating his daughter and he was still trying to decide whether or not to let me live. Duck hunting actually sounds kind of fun, except for the getting wet, getting cold and getting up before noon on a Saturday parts.

2. I’ve never been to an escape room. However, I experience something like it every night when I try to find my way to the bathroom half asleep in the dark.

3. I’ve never been to a NASCAR, Formula 1, or drag race. I have given all three of my daughters driving lessons, so I’m good.

4. I’ve never watched “Game of Thrones.” (See number 2.)

5. I’ve never been fly fishing – unless you count those times I’ve been sitting in a meeting at work and discovered, to my horror, that my pants were unzipped.

6. I’ve never been axe throwing. I did abuse some pine trees with those ninja throwing stars as a kid, though. (I grew up during the 1970s and ‘80s when parents still allowed kids to eat highly processed meats and play with sharp objects unattended.)

7. I’ve never played “Call of Duty.” (See number 2.)

8. I’ve never been to a Taylor Swift concert, and I’d really like to go. I’m actually on a waiting list for tickets to an upcoming concert in New Orleans, but

Recovering From Covid

REDA ROUNTREE
Guest Columnist

Are you struggling after contracting Covid? Have your symptoms worsened weeks or months later? I’m right there with you. I tested positive in December 2020 and have been sick for years. I’ve seen dozens of doctors before finding solutions and am still learning, with a months-long recovery ahead of me. Although there’s no cure for long Covid, there are ways to manage symptoms. Here are some things I’ve learned through five hospital stays and countless doctor visits.

Improve your diet
Give up beer. Sacrifice coffee you always grabbed before work. Forget fast food. Forget fried food (a hard one, I know). Eat plenty of vegetables and fresh fruit. Switch up your diet in a major way and see if you notice a difference.

Conserve your energy

It’s hard to slow down. Even cutting back on chores such as laundry or cooking can be difficult. But now is the time to count on others so you can get the rest you need. Use a wheelchair for doctor’s appointments if necessary. Floor exercises can help you gain strength without worsening symptoms.

Get your allergies under control

Covid causes inflammation. If your body is already fighting inflammation because of allergies, you need to combat allergies as much as possible. Take histamine blockers such as Pepcid, Benadryl or Zyrtec available over the counter but talk to your doctor first.

Wear compression garments

Are you having trouble standing for long periods of time or experiencing dizziness? If you are, you might be dealing with symptoms connected to POTS (Postural Orthostatic Tachycardia Syndrome) which is very common with long Covid. Try compression garments — compression socks and runners’ tights for leg support will help.

Tackle brain fog

My grandparents did the newspaper crossword puzzle and word jumble every morning. I now realize the importance of mental exercise every day, which will go a long way toward kicking brain fog.

There’s a game app developed by scientists to help improve memory and attention called Lumosity, with a free version available. This isn’t a paid sponsorship, this is me giving you real advice as a Lumosity user for over five months and it’s helped significantly.

Address your hardest symptoms first

Three common symptoms of Long Covid are lung problems, exhaustion and brain fog but you might have less common symptoms and not even realize those are tied to long Covid. Seizures, hearing loss and digestive issues are also common.

Before you meet with your primary physician, prepare a list of five important questions and write down your three most severe symptoms. What has changed the way you function on a daily basis? Make these three symptoms your biggest priority when talking to your doctor.

Keep searching for the medical professional who will believe you

This leads me to the most important piece of advice I can give you — keep searching for the right doctor to help you. Find that doctor who will listen to you, address your symptoms, and give you hope.

Dressing up for Senate success

TOM PURCELL
Guest Columnist

I suppose it was just a matter of time before casual dress hit the U.S. Senate.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer has told the Senate’s sergeant-at-arms to no longer enforce the hallowed chamber’s informal dress code, which had required senators and their staffers to wear business attire.

Schumer’s directive appears to be tailor-made for Pennsylvania Sen. John Fetterman, who prefers gym shorts and hoodies over the suits and ties male senators have always worn.

When Fetterman first arrived at the Senate, he attempted to wear a suit and tie — but looked as uncomfortable as a kidnap victim constrained by a straitjacket.

After being treated for clinical depression, however, he returned to the Senate in his favorite frump duds.

To paraphrase comedian Dennis Miller, Fetterman’s clothes make him look like the kid who taps the keg at fraternity parties.

As someone who prefers slothful wear over formal attire — running pants, a long-sleeved Pitt Panthers shirt and frayed sandals — I’m sympathetic to Fetterman’s situation.

On one hand, I think the Senate deserves incredible courtesy and respect. It is a tremendous honor to be among 100 of the most accomplished and powerful people on the planet.

Senators must honor their colleagues through their manner, gestures, words and dress — one man’s comfort should never trump one’s duty to show respect to his colleagues and the august institution he represents.

On the other hand, our culture sure has gotten sloppy.

I recently found an old photo of my grandfather at a baseball game in the 1920s. He and the other guys at the game were sporting suits and ties and fedora hats.

Pretty much everyone dressed up in formal clothes when they went to restaurants, movies and Sunday Mass well into the 1970s.

The Atlantic reports that our national shift to casual wear began in the mid-’80s with tech companies in California.

“Restrictive clothing worn for appearances’ sake was inefficient, and Silicon Valley was all about efficiency,” reports the magazine.

Long work hours writing computer code gave way to tech employees dressing down in khaki pants and button-down collar shirts.

Casual Friday soon loosened corporate dress standards across the country, and that evolved into casual day every day.

Now, thanks to covid, we’ve become a country of wrinkled slob who look like we just crawled out of bed.

Like it or not, we are living in the heyday of frump, and no public figure symbolizes frumpiness more than Fetterman — whose bold stand for slovenliness surely motivated Schumer to abolish informal dress standards for senators.

Schumer may rue the day he made this change, however.

It’s just a matter of time before Mitt Romney interviews witnesses as he still wears last-night’s silk pajama top, Ted Cruz casts votes in cargo shorts, black socks and scuffed wingtips, and Bernie Sanders filibusters in the raggedy white robe given to him as a gift 40 years ago.

Though I’m guilty of frumpism, if I were a senator I’d embrace the old saying “Dress for the job you want.”

I’d wear a crisp suit and tie and make sure my shoes were perfectly polished.

I’d do so for the simple reason that dress is a form of expression and communication — and that “dressing like a senator” will make it easier for my colleagues to respect me and collaborate with me than they would with the kid who taps kegs at frat parties.

ing on Tuesday, Sept. 19. “That was a big accomplishment that we have our major entertainment locked in.”

There will also be live music, bounce houses, and craft vendors.

The Town of Esto has also done work on a Two-Toed Tom paper mache mascot. Tew and Council Vice President Josh Davenport discussed how to handle parking for the event, including potentially leasing or renting a nearby area for spaces.

“I spoke to the [Holmes County] Tourism Development Council about [the event] and they are ecstatic about it,” Tew said. “They see this as a key benefit for our counties.”

There will also be a Two-Toed Tom float in the Bonifay Rodeo Parade in October.

In other news from the meeting, Davenport suggested a small harvest festival be held in town this fall.

Tew was asked to put up a Facebook post asking if anyone is interested in volunteering for the event, though Davenport said he will personally hold the event if need be.

Rental fees for John Clark Park—particularly when people want to book an event for a year out—was also discussed.

The council ultimately approved requiring a $50 non-refundable deposit for event rentals after Tew brought the item forth.

“There are some events on the books that are way out,” Tew said.

“As soon as people have their reunion or something, they want to book for the next year but that means I’m putting down a name for a date and not getting any money. If somebody else comes by and actually rent it, I say this family and these people have this date.”

board before taking on the responsibilities. Holmes County will still fund the project for the next five to six months until Bonifay takes over.

In other news from the meeting, the Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission also tentatively approved the two and a half-acre site at the Holmes County Sanitary Landfill with a 99-year lease on the property. All costs for fencing and surveying will be at no cost to Holmes County. Any permanent improvements to the property will be left on site.

Commissioners approved the submission of a grant of $23,676 for the Holmes County Public Library to ensure library services continue.

The moving of the Holmes County Sheriff’s Office has been delayed until after the Holmes County Rodeo. County Administrator David Corbin said the Bonifay Police Department might be interested in the building. Talks will continue at the next meeting on Oct. 3 at 6 p.m.

Donnie Sellers of Florida Forestry Service gave their annual report for fiscal year 2022-2023, ending Sept. 30. There were 27 wildfires, burning 213.51 acres.

The Holmes County Legislative Delegation meeting will be held Oct. 3 at 10 a.m. at 107 East Virginia Avenue in Bonifay. State Representative Shane Abbott and State Senator Jay Trumbull will be in attendance. The meeting is open to all Holmes County residents.

period, the developer, Nick Henderson of Walton County, will start from the beginning of the process and is expected to bring back more in-depth plans for the site.

Commissioner Wes-

The Washington County Board of County Commissioners will meet again in workshop at 9 a.m. on Oct. 12.

I think it’s more of a “you sad, sad man who will never get tickets and shouldn’t want them” list.

9. I’ve never played pickleball. I’m not exactly sure what it is, but if it involves food eaten with pickles (or food of any kind), I’m in.

10. And speaking of eating, I’ve never had cauliflower-crust pizza. I’ve tried to eat raw cauliflower, which reminds me of eating a candle, and I eat my own weight in pizza about once a week. (See number 2.) But I really believe in keeping my food groups separate, so I think I’ll pass.

So, there you have it. Now that I’ve gotten all of this off my chest, I know I’ll sleep better – if I can find my way back from the bathroom.

Holmes County emerging as Class 1R threat

WMBB

The Holmes County football team has emerged as the Panhandle's team to beat in their classification this season, perfect in games against Class 1 Rural opponents.

"Being able to beat them and playing in that game, knowing that you beat them," Holmes County junior quarterback Colby Powell said. "It feels great."

The Blue Devils made a statement with the 46-36 win over cross-county rival Chipley, which is something Holmes County hasn't been able to do over the last six years. They followed it up with another win over offensive powerhouse Sneads.

"I feel like if we put the best Holmes County Blue Devils out there we're going to have a lot better than a good chance in most games that we play," Holmes County head football coach Kevin Womble said.

Holmes County football has a reputation for building tough players, but this year they have the added bonuses of depth and talent.

"The big difference is this year we've got a lot of talent to go along with it," Womble said. "It's not that they're tough, but they don't have a lot of speed or they're tough, but they don't have a lot of ability. We've kind of got a little bit of all of it this year."

As the target is forming on the Blue Devil's back, the team is not letting the newfound attention affect their game.

"Stay humble and do what we have to do until we get to where

CHS Lady Tigers Volleyball host Altha Wildcats

STAFF REPORT

In an exciting showdown on the volleyball court, the Chipley Lady Tigers played host to the Altha Wildcats on Sept. 21.

Junior Varsity Match

The junior varsity game began with a dominant performance by the Lady Tigers in the first set, winning convincingly with a score of 25-7.

The Altha Wildcats, determined to turn the tide, fought hard in the second set but the Lady Tigers maintained their composure and secured the set with a score of 25-17.

Varsity Match

Moving on to the varsity division, the Chipley Lady Tigers continued their impressive form. In the first set, they demonstrated their superiority with a commanding score of 25-10.

The Wildcats put up a spirited effort in the second set, but the Lady Tigers maintained their momentum and secured another win at 25-11.

DEER

deer in Holmes County. The positive test was the first known case of a deer in Florida having the disease, which has been found in 30 other states including Alabama and Mississippi.

No additional cases have been detected in close to 200 deer tested since the Holmes County case, but wildlife officials expect an increase in deer deaths from the disease. Directives from the commission will be reevaluated after the upcoming hunting season.

Claerbout said the December weekend - the start of the second phase of the “general gun” season for deer hunting in the Panhandle region that includes the three counties --- “is very popular for deer hunting.”

“We also looked at harvest reporting data from the last few years to determine which weekend would most likely yield the highest number of harvested deer from that area,” Claerbout said. “Since these check stations will be fully staffed, we needed to pick the most effective time to do this to ensure that we’ll be able to collect as many samples as possible.”

Claerbout said the state will also work with taxidermists and processors in the three-county area and provide drop-off freezers for hunters so samples can be collected.

With no simple treatment or vaccine for chronic wasting disease, deer farmers have expressed concern that a single positive test could require the eradication of entire herds, which in some cases represent millions of dollars in investments.

Florida has monitored the issue since 2002, testing about 17,500 hunter-killed, road-killed and sick deer.

In 2021, the state placed certain limits on importing deer carcasses into Florida. People can bring in deboned meat, finished taxidermy mounts and clean hides and antlers.

Music was a passion for Tyler who was always writing lyrics and listening to music. He loved his family and did his best to set a good example for his nieces and nephews.

“He didn’t want them to go down the wrong path, so he tried to steer them in the right direction,” Pate said. “He wanted them to be successful, just like he did his own children.”

Pate said the last couple of weeks have been very difficult especially with derogatory things people are saying on social media.

“Tyler isn’t the person he is being made out to be,” Pate said. “He was a good person. We all make mistakes, but he didn’t deserve to be shot. Nobody deserves that.”

The hardest part for Pate is never again having Tyler kiss her on her cheek before he left.

“He never left without kissing my face,” Pate said. “I will never have that again. He was my baby boy, and he forever will be. Tyler left us with a legacy of love.”

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS AND ADVERTISER

Philip Roundtree Stadium was filled with excitement and joy as history was made before the home football game against the Bay High Tornadoes last Friday evening when the school's baseball team celebrated their first-ever state championship win. The much-anticipated ring ceremony served as a reminder of the remarkable year the group of players and coaches had. The state championship ring ceremony completed the 2023 season for the Tigers. Each member of the team received a personalized state championship ring. The roster of champions comprises players from different grade levels, showcasing the depth and diversity of talent within the team. The coaching staff, led by head coach Andy Compton and assistant coaches Jesse Carter, Ty Russ, and Colby Cleveland, played a pivotal role in guiding the team to success. The collaborative efforts of the baseball staff Bob Booth, Phillip Adams, and Brad Adams were instrumental in achieving this historic championship. A special recognition went out to Bryson Howard who was named Player of the Year, a testament to his outstanding performance throughout the season. Additionally, Coach Andy Compton was deservedly named Coach of the Year, recognizing his leadership and ability to mold a group of athletes into a championship-winning team. The players received their championship rings, each one engraved with their name and position, State Champions, and the championship year of 2023.

we want to get," Holmes County senior running back Jameson Bacon said. For Coach Womble, coming back for his second stint as the head coach of his alma mater the pressure for success is on, but he gives all the credit to those wearing the jersey on Friday night. "These guys are the ones out here making goal line stands are the ones punch in from the one-yard line," Womble said. "I don't get to do any of that anymore. I just call the plays." For the last two years, the Blue Devils have made a second-round playoff exit, but this year with a large senior class, they are hopeful to take it further this season. Holmes County has Friday, September 22 off but will be back in action, hosting Vernon for homecoming on Friday, September 29.

The search for the greatest scarecrow is over

NAN THOMPSON
Nthompson@kentsmith.biz

Chipley was invaded by scarecrows on a Saturday morning.

Not just any scarecrow but scarecrows made by locals, old and young. They lined the lawn at the Chipley Pavillion on Sept. 23, waiting to be chosen as the greatest.

The event, sponsored by the Chipley Garden Club and Washington County Historical Society, started their challenge and marked the advent of fall last month by placing scarecrows throughout downtown.

Winners were divided into youth, adult, and business/club categories.

Adult 1st Place - In Honor of Military - The Roberts Family

Adult 2nd Place - Crow-Chet Lessons - Joy Crawford

Youth 1st Place - Cawffee Shop - Faelyn Crawford

Youth 2nd Place - Pumpkin Pie - Kinsky Longo and Britton

Hammond

Business 1st Place - Animal Control Officer, Jim Bob - City of Chipley-Patty Tanner

People's Choice and Sweetest Award - Emily the Cheerleader - Kayleigh Longo and Maddelyn Grantham

Garden Club Special - Ms Sun-nee Flower - Andrea Baldwin

Funniest - Crow Bar - Mike Crawford
Recycling-In Honor of the Military - The Roberts Family

HCHS Volleyball team raises funds for cancer patient

DIANE M. MOORE
Dmoore@kentsmith.biz

Each season, the Holmes County High School Lady Devils Volleyball team reaches out in the community and helps someone in need. This season, the team chose Dawn Draper who is battling cancer.

Draper, a 1991 graduate of HCHS, was diagnosed with a rare low-grade ovarian cancer and in May underwent open abdomen surgery to remove the cancer. The first of six treatments began in August with hopes of remission.

The team held a cake auction on Sept. 18, to raise funds to help Draper with expenses. The following day, Coach Walton, Lacie Trout, and Averie Edwards presented Draper with a check for $1,852 from the cake auction proceeds.

Draper has driven a school bus for Holmes County since 2007 and is said to be a caring soul.

"Our community came together with love and compassion for this beautiful and caring soul," fundraiser participant Rhonda Trout said. "We are so thankful for our small town coming together to help one of our own."

Draper is the mother of two daughters, Cora Stump and Carlee Burrell, and grandmother to Brennen and Caroline.

A Stroll Down Peach Cobbler Lane

WHAT SOUTHERN FOLKS EAT

“An apple is an excellent thing - until you have tried a peach.”
— George DuMaurier

There is something about using my granddaddy’s old cast iron skillet to make peach cobbler that makes me happy. It’s an old 10” black skillet, shiny with its seasoning. Granddaddy used it well; he was an avid cook and was very good at it. However, his sophisticated palate was sometimes lost on my little sister and me.

At the time, as children, we thought some of the things he made were too odd. The “weirdest” things I remember were his addition of black olives to spaghetti sauce, and his making buckwheat pancakes with real maple syrup instead of white flour pancakes with Log Cabin brand syrup, like we had at my house. Of course, I would love those pancakes now; I still remember exactly what they tasted like, and I’d love to have them straight off his hot skillet today. I really like black olives now, as well. If only I could sit and enjoy one of those meals with him now; I wouldn’t complain a bit.

Of course I can’t do that, but I do feel a connection with Granddaddy when I use his cast iron skillet now. I make biscuits in it, as well as cornbread. It gives them both the perfect, crusty bottom. I pan fry steaks in it occasionally, too, with butter and onions. Scrumptious, and perfect when you can’t grill outside.

One of my favorite things to make in Granddaddy’s iron skillet is peach cobbler. You can make this cobbler with other making some other delicious food. The edges aren’t quite as crusty and wonderful as from the skillet, but I have yet to have anyone turn down a second serving, so I think it’s ok.

Here’s the recipe, followed by a recipe for my homemade vanilla extract. Now is the time to make it, as the holiday baking season it’s less expensive. Why? Well, imitation vanilla is made from artificial flavorings, some of which come from wood processing byproducts, and often contain chemicals. And “vanilla flavoring” is usually a combination of imitation vanilla extract and real vanilla extract. Not so great, really, though a

Buy a bottle of bourbon or vodka.

Buy three vanilla beans per 8 oz. of alcohol. Now, it’s important to know that buying them in the spice aisle at the grocery store is not at all an economical way to purchase them. I’ve seen a bottle containing one... just one... vanilla bean in the spice aisle and it was marked $14. That’s ridiculous.

I buy my vanilla

Drop the appropriate number of vanilla beans into your bottle of alcohol, including any seeds that may have fallen out. Remember, about 1 bean per eight ounces of alcohol.

Close bottle tightly, and place in a dark, cool cabinet for two months or so to steep. Every once in a while, give the bottle a good shake, and put it back in the cabinet.

By holiday baking time, you’ll have more than enough of the best vanilla extract you can use. You can replenish these bottles, as well; you need not throw away your vanilla beans when the bottle gets low. Just add more alcohol and let it steep. See? Economical!

In addition to improving your own baking, homemade vanilla is a great gift idea for your baking friends. You can divide it up into small mason jars tied up with a ribbon, or find some small bottles to divide it among and make your own labels, etc. Have fun with it!

In just a couple of months, you can make your own pies, cakes, cobblers, cookies and other delicious baked goods with your own homemade vanilla extract. Enjoy!

fruits, of course, such as blackberries or blueberries. Perhaps even apples! That would be perfect in the fall, with lots of butter and cinnamon.

What I love most about this cobbler recipe is how rustic it looks, and how nice the crust turns out. Of course, this cobbler is also delicious made in a glass baking dish; I sometimes make it in my 8x12-inch dish when granddaddy’s skillet is being used for will be here before you know it.

SECOND RECIPE OF ARTICLE:

Next, I want to share a recipe that you’ll be able to use all winter long if you make it now: homemade vanilla extract.

Most of us who bake go through a lot of vanilla extract. It makes our desserts taste fabulous! However, it can get expensive to use the real thing. I choose not to use imitation vanilla extract, even though slight step up from the completely fake kind.

All of that to say this: if you are going to all the trouble to bake for your family, use the best vanilla! Why add more chemicals to your family’s diet, or yours?

Here is the solution to the expense, if that is what is troubling to you: make your own pure vanilla extract! It’s so very easy, and it tastes wonderful. I’ve been using the bottle I made for nearly a year now. Here’s how I did it:

beans online (search Amazon or other shopping sites for ‘whole vanilla beans’) or at World Market, where they package them in multiples and sell them at a much lower price.

Once I have alcohol and vanilla beans in hand, here’s how I proceed:

Split the vanilla beans with the tip of a sharp knife, leaving the top one inch uncut. Spread the beans open a bit to expose the interior.

Iron Skillet Peach Cobbler

Ingredients:

- 1 stick unsalted butter
- 4 cups peach slices (or other fruit)
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup plain flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- pinch of salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Method:

Place the butter in the skillet, and put in warm oven to melt, for five minutes or so.
(Don’t let butter turn brown; keep an eye on it)

In a mixing bowl, combine flour, baking powder, cinnamon, and salt. Use a wire whisk to combine it well.

Add to flour mixture sugar, milk, and vanilla extract. Mix well.

Remove skillet from oven, and tilt it until all sides are coated with the melted butter.

Pour melted butter into the batter, and stir until well-combined.

Pour batter into hot skillet, and then pour peaches and any juices they’ve released into the center of the batter.

Place in 350 degree oven, and bake until the top is golden brown, or a cake tester inserted into the center comes out clean. This may take up to an hour, depending upon your oven.

Remove, let cool down a bit, and then serve warm with vanilla ice cream, or homemade whipped cream on top.

79th annual Northwest Florida Championship Rodeo is coming to town

STAFF REPORT

The Bonifay Kiwanis Club's 79th annual Northwest Florida Championship Rodeo is set to be held October 5-7 at Veterans Memorial Field in Bonifay. Activities begin each night at 5:30 p.m., with rodeo events beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The three night event is a Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) sanctioned RAM Series Rodeo. Events will include barrel racing, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, and a new event added this year: breakaway roping. The kids can take part in the fun with stick horse racing on Thursday night only, mutton bustin' and also new this year: calf scramble. The latter two will take place all three nights.

The Rodeo Parade is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 6 and 7, at 1 p.m.

Thursday night is kids' night where children 10 and under are admitted free. Children will be able to meet Bucky the Bull, as well as Jesse and Woody from Disney's "Toy Story 2."

The Holmes County High School Drama Department will provide entertainment for the night.

Friday night is military and first responders' night. Will Bannister is headlining the brand new Friday night concert event which will begin at 5:30 p.m. Bannister's song "Find a New Home" was released with the new Clint Eastwood movie "Cry Macho."

Those in attendance are encouraged to wear red, white, and blue on Friday night and will have the opportunity to participate in Fan of the Night for special prizes.

To close out the weekend, Saturday night is the RAM Series Rodeo Dress Your Best night.

Holmes County's own, Gunsels, will headline the concert beginning at 5:30 p.m. Chances to win giveaways from the 2023 Rodeo Sponsors and Friends of the Rodeo are scheduled throughout the night.

In their 10th year providing the livestock for competition is 4 L Rodoe.

Entertainment for this year's event includes:

- Bethany Iles and partner Rider Kiesner-trick riders extraordinaire
- Tim "Wild Thang" Leopard and Team Ghost Riders where monkeys riding border collies round up sheep
- Buddy the Bull, a 2000 pound gentle giant waiting for a photo op with everyone.

For more information on the 2023 NWFC Rodeo, visit the Bonifay Kiwanis Club website at www.bonifayrodeo.com

Eye of Hope Recovery Advocates hosted a recovery rally on Saturday, Sept. 23, in Westville Park.

The community event is held to help raise awareness and provide resources and support for those currently dealing with or recovering from not only substance or alcohol addiction but also domestic violence and sexual abuse.

The event also helped raise suicide awareness and break the stigma surrounding mental health issues.

Event chair Samantha Peacock and co-founder of Eye of Hope Recovery Advocates said that Eye of Hope was created with the goal of educating youth on the dangers of addiction, as well as advocating for those struggling with life trauma.

"We advocate and support, whether it's addiction, domestic violence, sexual abuse, suicide or mental health issues," said Peacock. "We also hope to inspire the community to rally together, and let's face this epidemic together."

This year saw several speakers, including Wenonah Sorrell, Steve Webster, Destiny Melton and Tyla Yates who each shared their personal stories. Kalan Miller of Cypress Springs was the headline musical act. 14-year-old Kiera Howell also provided entertainment.

At this year's event Eye of Hope, more than 300 doses of Narcan were given out.

"While we do not advocate the use of illegal substances, we do know that we cannot change the world in one day," said Peacock. "We do ask you, however, to please have Narcan on hand and never use alone."

A butterfly release to honor those lost from addiction, suicide, domestic violence and impaired driving was a touching and beautiful way to remember them.

"We are releasing recovery into the atmosphere," said Advocate Tina Sloan.

The Holmes County Sheriff's Office grills up burgers and hot dogs at the rally each year and this year was no different.

"As long as there is breath, there is hope," Sheriff John Tate said.

Sip-n-Shop in Downtown Chipley was a chance for the community to come together and have fun on Sept. 21. [OFF MY FRAME PHOTOGRAPHY]

Sip-n-Shop shines for Thursday Night Lights

COLLIN BREAUX

Generally, Friday Night Lights are a big deal in small towns, where people come together to enjoy high school football. The night before local games on Sept. 21, though, was billed as Thursday Night Lights as part of the Downtown Chipley Sip-n-Shop community gathering.

The monthly gathering on Railroad Avenue and Main Street encourages people to come out, enjoy live music, play cornhole, and patronize local businesses while street lights shine bright.

Scout is looking for his forever home.
[NAN THOMPSON | The News and Advertiser]

I am Scout. Do you know what Scout means? It means the one to go ahead of others to gather information about the enemies position, strengths, and movement. I am fit for the job!

I'm lean and low, young, and ready to alert you of coming danger. You know, things like the mail-person, USPS driver, and maybe even your neighbor. You can hide in the kitchen while I bark at them to chase them away.

I am a sweet 10-month-old dachshund, boston terrier, and chihuahua mix. My dad was a long haired dachshund, my mom was a boston terrier/chihuahua. Even with my crazy mixed up parents. I think I'm adorable, so do the people here at BARRK Rescue.

I might be little, but I am mighty, as my name infers. I love food, toys and of course a soft bed. Your bed will do, I don't take up much space, and I can protect you better.

While I get along with all size dogs, I'm not sure about cats, since the place I live right now doesn't have any...but I sure do love people. I will require a fenced-in yard so I have a place to run and play and can't run off.

I am up to date on my shots, neutered, and ready for my new home.

Faith and the football field

CALEB DUNCAN
Guest Columnist

(Editor's note: This is the final part in a six-part series called "Faith and the Football Field.")

In the past six weeks, we've looked at several things that the football field teaches us about Christian life: practice, purpose, preparation, pain, and passion. This week, we come to a sixth and final lesson: priorities.

This is a difficult lesson I learned during my senior year of high school. As I prepared for my final football season, I intended to lay it all out for my senior year. I played tight end on the right side and spent all summer getting ready.

"This is it. The last games I'll ever play."

Yet as I started practicing with the team for a new season, something shifted in me.

In my senior year of high school, God began to get a hold of my life for the better. My youth pastor was pouring into my life. My Dad was giving me opportunities to serve in our church.

I had fallen in love with serving others and getting my feet wet in ministry, and my passion for football seemed to start falling apart. I realized that football had become an idol in my life.

As we drew closer to the new season, I began praying, and it became clear that my heart wasn't in football anymore. Football took priority over my relationship with God and it started gnawing at me. I felt God calling me to something different.

You'd think I would finish my senior year after spending 7-11th grade playing the game. But I couldn't. I wanted to spend more time with friends, in the word, and with God.

Trust me, I am not trying to sound "holier than thou." You can be committed to Christ Jesus and still play football. Don't get me wrong! Yet for me, the love wasn't there.

Football was an idol, and I wanted to tear it down. And God spoke to me when I needed to make some decisions.

I called my coach one night on the phone, "I'm in town. Can we meet up? I need to talk to you about something."

When I saw him, he said, "So, Duncan, you're quitting the football team?"

As I explained the reasons why, he said, "Say no more. We will miss you, and you'll always be a part of this team. But I understand that you have to get your priorities right."

There's that word: priorities.

As I explained to friends why I wasn't playing football, some just didn't understand. Some probably thought I was just nervous about my senior year.

However, my closest friends understood that God was doing work in my life, and I wanted to be sold out for Him.

I'm not saying we need to quit everything we commit to but there are certainly times to reevaluate our lives and think am I worshiping my job, my sport, my hobby, or something else other than God?

I missed football

A reason to celebrate getting older – and older

SHERYL BOLDT
Guest Columnist

"Happy birthday!" I said to one of the ladies I cared for when I was a private caregiver.

"What's so happy about it?" Ms. Elaine countered. "I'm an old lady, getting older."

I answered quickly (maybe too quickly) with my positive spin.

"But aren't you glad you've lived such a long life?"

At the time, I couldn't empathize with Ms. Elaine's sentiments. I was a mere spring chicken in my 40s. Now, years later, I understand.

My mirror, in its not-so-subtle way, reveals that another birthday is fast approaching.

I'm sure it means well every time it nags me about applying increasing amounts of anti-wrinkle creams and making another appointment to cover my graying roots.

If I allowed myself, I could easily dread another birthday. Not only because of the physical part, but also because of the dreams I fear may no longer be possible.

Do you ever feel this way?

Remember when you were a child? How excited you felt about every birthday? You couldn't wait to celebrate your special day with family and friends.

What if we returned to that same celebratory attitude – no matter how many candles we have on our birthday cake?

"Yeah, sure, Sheryl," you say. "Wait until you're looking at 90 candles."

Yet what would your friend who's dying of cancer say about another birthday? I'm sure he or she would gladly celebrate getting older, and older – and older.

I'm not trying to force a Pollyanna attitude. (Believe me, I'm also writing this column for myself.) Perhaps Psalm 25:1

(AMPC) can help us with our perspective: "Unto You, O Lord, do I bring my life."

When we pause to remember who we're living for – who gives us our life – we're able to look at ourselves (and every day God gives us) differently.

When I remember to bring my life to the Lord, I live that day differently. Each time I pray for His direction on how to use the time He gives me, I'm able to look forward to each day.

I can rest in knowing He has a purpose for me which continues ... and continues! Rather than mourning lost youthfulness, let's rejoice in each day as we wait in expectation for what God has planned for us.

If you think about it, no matter how old we are, we're going to live forever in eternity. So, we're actually ... merely spring chickens.
